

Saleen Pulls a Trifecta

Saleen Automotive, the Southern California vehicle manufacturer has pulled an exhibit trifecta at two of the largest automotive museums in the country. Saleen currently has a comprehensive, historical exhibit at the LeMay Automobile Museum in Tacoma, WA, and is featured in two exhibits at the Petersen Automotive Museum in Los Angeles, CA.

“Saleen: A Journey From the Heart of a Racer to America’s Supercar” is currently on display at America’s Auto Museum (AAM) aka the LeMay. This carefully curated exhibit features 17 historically, significant Saleen vehicles from its nearly 40 year history.

From the very first 1984 Saleen Mustang, to the S7 used in the Hollywood blockbuster “Bruce Almighty,” to Steve’s racing cars, there is something to see for every automobile enthusiast.

“To be acknowledged and honored for our vehicles and history, is an honor in itself,” said Saleen. “...and the breadth and unique variety of cars in this exhibit truly is sight to see”

Located south in sunny Southern California is the Petersen Automotive Museum. Two of their exhibits currently feature multiple Saleen vehicles. “Supercars: A Century of Spectacle and Speed” features a Saleen S7, and their latest display “Forza Horizon 5” features a Saleen S1 one in race prepped GT4 form. Both of these cars are Saleen original designs, and built on in-house engineered platforms.
